News Release

'WOMEN: New Portraits' by Annie Leibovitz to open in Hong Kong in June

Commissioned by UBS, the exhibition of new photographs will open to the public in Kennedy Town on 3 June 2016. Access to the exhibition will be free.

Hong Kong, 17 May 2016 – 'WOMEN: New Portraits', an exhibition of newly commissioned photographs by renowned photographer Annie Leibovitz travels to Hong Kong next month, opening to the public on 3 June 2016 in the Cheung Hing Industrial Building, Kennedy Town as part of a 10-city global tour.

Leibovitz's new work is a continuation of a project that began over fifteen years ago when her most enduringly popular series of photographs, 'Women', was published in 1999. Susan Sontag, with whom the original project was a collaboration, called it "a work in progress". 'WOMEN: New Portraits' will reflect the changes in the roles of women today and will evolve over the coming year as a body of work.

The new portraits feature women of outstanding achievement including artists, musicians, CEOs, politicians, writers and philanthropists. In addition to the new photographs, the exhibition includes work from the original series, as well as other unpublished photographs taken since.

Annie Leibovitz said: "When I asked UBS about updating the WOMEN's project there was no hesitation. They said let's do it, and they have been extraordinary in every way. It is such a big undertaking and a broad subject, it is like going out and photographing the ocean."

Kathryn Shih, President UBS Asia Pacific, said: "Annie Leibovitz is a leading creative figure and we're thrilled to be collaborating with her to celebrate the changing roles of women. UBS is dedicated to attracting, supporting and retaining top female talent across all levels of the organization and we are committed to increasing the percentage of women at the firm. The exhibition is free to visit, so we hope that the newly commissioned series inspires and empowers as many people as possible."

Aligned with the focus UBS places on education, the free learning programs accompanying the exhibition will explore ways of seeing through photography, working with young people in local schools, communities and universities. In Hong Kong, these programs will include a workshop with photography and fine arts students from Hong Kong Art School and the Chinese University of Hong Kong. On weekends, free family workshops will be presented in partnership with Asia Society Hong Kong Center, the exhibition's Education Partner in Hong Kong. A Teachers' Guide produced in partnership with the International Center of Photography in New York and a Children's Activity Guide are available to teachers and the public on the exhibition website.

UBS are also presenting a talks program, 'Women for Women' through 2016, addressing topics of global and local relevance to women's rights. In Hong Kong, UBS will host an event examining the representation of women in the media.

Exhibition visitors and audiences globally are invited to share stories of inspiring women in their own lives through WOMEN: Heroes, a digital campaign celebrating women making an impact in their communities. Complementing the 10-city international tour of 'WOMEN: New Portraits', participants submit their captioned photos via Instagram using #ShareYourHero or directly to the digital gallery at www.ubs.com/shareyourhero for a chance to win a trip for two to the New York opening of the exhibition in November 2016.
